According to Leonardo da Vinci, “Learning never exhausts the mind. This is one of the reasons why the profession of safety is so rewarding. In safety you can be involved in a wide variety of tasks/subjects. One day you may find yourself working at an industrial site such as an electrical generation facility only to move on to the afternoon and provide ergonomic advice at a local library. There have been many occasions in which I have served as the safety officer within an ICS structure. On other occasions I would have to arrange for traffic control and/or train the police officers, arrange for environmental cleanup, or even act as the logistics officer for other emergencies. I have even gone as far as having to provide exhaust and odor control in a crime lab that had a decaying body stored in it. So I'm trying to say - STAY THE COURSE! It is well worth your efforts. Above all else try to read professional articles for at least one hour every day.
