I returned to school after several years to continue my education and earn my Ph.D. Like many mature students who return to academic life, I faced many challenges. During those years, I realized that I wanted to teach all the things I had learned about communication within organizations. I have taught freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior students how people communicate socially and at work. I hope that, through online courses, I can continue to foster critical thinking and help students to become active participants in their organizations.
