CSU Story
Being a faculty member at Columbia Southern University for over 16 years has been an incredibly satisfying experience. I have enjoyed working with students to help them achieve their personal and professional goals, gaining great satisfaction at having been a small part of making it happen. I have always felt that education is the pathway to success and my teaching philosophy focuses on helping each and every student learn and grow to be able to leverage every aspect each course offers. To accomplish this, I have prided myself on giving timely and constructive feedback to help each student get the most out of the coursework, ensuring students know what they are doing well and specific areas where they can improve. I truly love teaching at CSU and look forward to continuing to provide our students with the best education possible to help them achieve their dreams.

Hobbies/Interests
I enjoy spending time with my family and love being near salt water beaches!

Teaching Philosophy
First and foremost, I want my students to learn. What I do as an instructor is to help facilitate the learning experience, taking into account the different learning styles of my students. I am vigilant about providing actionable feedback that allows my students the ability to understand what they are doing well and areas that they can continue to improve. I expect my students to give 110% and they can expect the same from me.

Advice for Current Students
My advice is easy – this is your chance to learn, so take advantage of every opportunity you can – the effort you put in will pay off! I remind myself of this quote and believe it to be true:
There are 10 things that require no talent, but can differentiate you in a positive way:

1. Submitting work on time
2. Work ethic
3. Effort
4. Body language
5. Energy
6. Attitude
7. Passion
8. Being coachable
9. Doing extra
10. Being prepared
